

Karl Marx (Sartre's Notebook in 1974)

By Jean-Paul Sartre

I. Jean Paul-Sartre

I am writing the Critique in many notes.

I want it collated finally, into a long critical Marxist even but more critical radical work.

I mean Marxists read their way. They even read it against its process.

I mean just be about being radical and intellectual instead of Sartre and his works and all of that. Be Fanonian.

II. Selections from my Notes on Karl Marx from a French Bookstore I found in Paris, (1961)

Karl Marx –

I want a rebellion, but am I so Hegelian as to rabble it?

No I want an intellectual of a Jewish formation to argue this etiquette.

I want only intellectuals, not such great philosophers and all that.

Be radical as an intellectual.

(1821, poetry)

1821 - poetic, radical rebellion but intellectual.
